

I am hoping that you will deny the petition of BellSouth, which is asking the FCC to stop regulating broadband service. As we have seen in the past, if services aren't regulated, prices go up for independents, and therefore for the customer. Lets play fair for all and not hand "give-aways" to the big companies. I very much value my choice in using an independent ISP, and feel that if you grant Bellsouth's petition, independents will loose their choice, prices will rise and large companies will have a monopoly.

Barbara Dittmann